LEHR MEMORIAL

Lines to Dr. Lehr.

---

How rapidly the time has sped,
Forty-four years or more have fled
Since a dear little man
With a very wise head,
And a warm German heart
Began to reign in this part.
His name we at present withhold,
But he is worth his weight in pure gold.
For that matter his life and his work are ours to behold,
They speak volumes for this great benefactor.
To this village, now Ada, the beautiful, the renown,
But in other days plain Johnstown,
A true benediction he came
Without any herald or fame
In his heart were his life's hopes and plans to found
A school to benefit man.
But we have grown famous
In country, State and town
For our good material in cap and gown
Our gratitude we would be expressing
To him who like a blessing here settled down,
In spite of all that was said about plans, school and location,
Not one discouragement, unseen or in sight,
Could swerve him from duty or what he deemed right.
Why not bring laurels with gratitude due,
To our own faithful founder of the old O. N. U.
No matter what befell him,

This great love upheld that heart, brave and true.
There were days dark and gloomy,
Those of sunshine and rain,
But he kept on going—just the same.
It was the red blood in his veins,
Which gave inspiration.
He knew in his heart that he could—
And determined with God's help he should,—
If given any chance—make good.
Here in these halls he provided a home for the worker,
Not a room here is found
For a literary loafer or shirker.
You must deal square
Then you will fare
Round here, with President, Professor and Founder.
Today there is no school better,
Nor hangs her success upon some Greek letter.
Our endowment is men and women with courage and brain,
Who have strength and character and a good name.
These are the credentials our founder requires
To which each and all may aspire.
His plans were his own,
Our school stands out democratic and unique,
To this thousands poor in this world's goods
May truthfully speak.
Here to these halls come some very raw timber
And oh, how uncouth!

But out in the world, yea, far over the ocean,
These very ones are filling high places and preaching God's truth..

Oh that innumerable host,
The vast body of students,
That owe allegiance and honor
To this noble man, brave and true.
What left he undone for you—
When he fought so bravely for the old O. N. U.?
Come one, Come all, join in the toast,
Come from your places—
Whether in America or on some foreign coast.
Would that we could call the roll—
That each could answer by name,

And ask that you join in a home coming again.
Come and meet old friends tried and true,
Come while he is here to welcome you—
Back to your places in the O. N. U.
Come let us recount the days long gone by,
Let sweet memory have full sweep for the time,
As we talk about those days of Auld Lang Syne!
Come with your greetings
To him whom we all love
And honor, so true,
Our Dear Doctor Lehr—
President Emeritus—founder of the old O. N. U.

—R. M.

Greetings to You

DR. ALBERT EDWIN SMITH, D. D., Ph. B.
President Ohio Northern University

History of Dr. Smith.

R. Albert Edwin Smith, D. D., Ph. D., the present head of the Ohio Northern University was born in New Richmond, Clairmont County, Ohio, December 16, 1860, and is therefore in the fiftieth year of his age. His ancestry on his paternal side were pure German, while on his maternal side they were Scotch Irish, and Virginian. Dr. Smith was born in poverty and at an early age was thrust out upon the world. After fighting the severe battle until his 19th year, he re-entered the public school and then attended Clairmont Academy, a celebrated institution in that section of the state from which he graduated with high honor after three years of study. He then entered the Christian ministry in the Methodist Episcopal church and preached for two years in his native county.

After this period of work he resumed his educational work at the Ohio Wesleyan University, Delaware, Ohio, from which he was graduated in the Classical course in the year 1887. In this same year he joined the Central Ohio Conference of the Methodist Episcopal church and for eighteen years served some of the best pastorates in the conference, namely, at Celina, Toledo, Defiance and Marion, Ohio.

During this year he pursued post graduate work at the Ohio Wesleyan University, adding his Ph. D., and was honored by being elected a trustee of that institution.

In the year 1905, by unanimous choice of the trustees of the Ohio Northern University, he was chosen to be president of this institution in the room of Dr. L. A. Belt, resigned. For five years he has been the administrative head of this great school, and under his hand it has flourished and prospered exceedingly.

Dr. Smith is in the prime of his manhood and gives promise of still larger service to the O. N. U. in the realization of his views of buildings, equipment, and efficiency.

The president is blessed with a devoted wife, Mrs. Harriet Vergon Smith, and a family of five children: three sons and two daughters.

Lehr Memorial.

BOUT the time that Mark Twain (Samuel L. Clemens) laid the foundations of his fame in "Innocense Abroad" and Wm. Dean Howells of Ohio was appealing to the emotional and imaginative through poetic strains, a young man of eagle eye, unclouded vision, and towering scholarly ambitions and attainments entered a little different but equally useful realm, that of an educator, in what was then Johnstown, now Ada, Hardin County, Ohio. This spare but all the more active young man was Henry Solomon Lehr, founder and President Emeritus of what is now the Ohio Northern University at Ada. It does not require much of a draught upon your imagination to see this sunny far seeing pedagogue standing near the old depot, like the prophet of Horeb lifting up his eyes and looking Eastward and Westward, saw no school of great learning on this newly established trunk line between Chicago and Alliance. Looking Northward and Southward he could discover on a bee line but one college or University between the capitals of the Wolverine and Buckeye states. Said he to his friends, Geographically, this is a strategic point for an Institution of learning. He further saw that although the country was flat and adjoined the marsh lands, the head waters of two noble rivers, the altitude was necessarily high, the water pure and through future drainage, this would become a rich agricultural district. Argument number two for a College location.

The almost phenominal results have justified the wisdom of one of our country's great and good men. For more than a third of a century, like a perennial spring, his tact, latent and fatherly dilligence, titanic ideals, unselfish Christain manhood, flowed into the lives of more than 32,000 struggling young men and women who had both cisatlantic and transatlantic homes. As graduates and ex-students, they now constitute a very vital part of the enduring fiber of our varied civilization. It was only natural that some tangible response to Dr. Lehr's great love for his "boys and girls" should be suggested by them. Fortunate was it that Dr. A. E. Smith's unselfish devotion and far seeing insight, began the crystallization of these nebulous yet precious ideals, into a Lehr Memorial Building, 180x160, three stories high, to be built of buff brick trimmed with stone and used for college purposes. The services of Rev. A. A. Thomas, a graduate of the Institution, was secured to gather funds, and the progress has been so commendable that more than one third of the approximate cost, $100,000.00, has been secured. The subscriptions are born of an unquenchable love and loyalty to certain fundamental elements of the old regime together with the abundance and assurance of continued and increased prosperity under the present administration.

Editorial.

T this season, as we are about to go to press, we can only murmur our thanks, as a parting word to those who have so graciously and loyally assisted in making this book a reality. Much as "10" abounds in enthusiasm and ideas there has been no such a spontaneity of funds, for truly the poverty of the Senior Class is exceeded only by that of her individual members. Great credit and honor are certainly due our class for publishing this, the first class book ever put out by the students of the O. N. U. Yet we cannot except this credit without acknowledging the aid of persons outside our class. To the faculty especially do we extend our thanks for their considerate advise and unstinted good will. We also send abroad to our Alumni who have granted our requests for "matter" and "cuts" with alacrity, our best wishes and warmest regards. To our literary societies, our sororities and fraternities we must acknowledge our gratefulness for their interest in our work, and their appreciated contributions. Last, whether least or not, we wish to thank our friends the Juniors, for their aid and good will in spite of all extenuating circumstances. Let us not be too hasty in our conclusions; these folks may come out all right after all. Our work on the whole has been pleasant and everyone has labored with a spirit and vim. If there has been heard the jar of dissension, it was only the ripple on the surface, while the great depths of our class spirit will flow on unbroken forever.

If you appreciate our book, Dear Reader, if you are interested in our composition, if you can laugh at our jokes, and above all if you have a warmer feeling and a higher regard for our Alma Mater, the old O. N. U.—then are we content, we die happy.—The Editor.

SCENES OF THE OHIO NORTHERN UNIVERSITY

Short Sketch of O. N. U. History.

DA was selected as the location of the O. N. U. for three distinct reasons.

1st. There were no institutions of learning located in northwestern Ohio with the exception of a small college at North Wood, Ohio, in Logan County, Heidelberg College at Tiffin, Ohio., and a Seminary at Milan, Ohio.

2nd. Ada was selected because it is on the water-shed dividing the waters flowing into the Great Lakes and into the Gulf via the Ohio and Mississippi rivers, and being situated on an elevated plateau would assure its healthfulness.

3rd. Its railroad facilities. The Pennsylvania, the great thoroughfare between the East and the West, intersected at Forest by the lines North and South, at Lima by the lines North and South, giving access from the East and West, Northeast, Southeast, Northwest, and Southwest.

The Founder visited a number of towns along the Pennsylvania road in the western part of the state assuring the citizens that if they would employ him to superintend the public schools and permit him to take in foreign students and retain him a few years until he would become known as a teacher he would open up a Normal School, and judging by his success in the past he promised to build up a school where thousands of students would be enrolled annually. The older citizens of Ada still remember that statement. He began teaching in Ada on the 9th day of April, 1866, and whenever the public school was not in session he would organize what he called a select school, teaching every week of the year. His last select term was in the Fall of 1870 when he enrolled 119 students and was compelled to employ several assistant teachers.

The Founder defined a normal school as a natural school. His object was not simply the training of young men and young women for the profession of teaching, but also to educate and train them for other professions and to become useful citizens.

In the Fall of 1870 he associated with himself B. F. Niesz and J. G. Park who is still connected with the school. They then began to erect the first Normal School building which is now known as the Old Brick. The Normal School proper began its first term on August 14, 1871. That year the founder was superintendent of the public schools, giving the public schools by contract two hours a day. He was also president of the Normal School and taught from seven to ten hours a day.

The first catalog published predicted that the school would become the millenium of learning of Northwestern Ohio. It also shows that there was established a Literary department and its course required four years for completion. There was established a College of Music in connection with the school and a College of Commerce.

The School was then known as the North Western Ohio Normal School. In the year 1880 there was added a department in the Fine Arts. The first teacher was Miss Gertrude Fryett. That year there was also established a department of Stenography. The first teacher of that department was D. F. Pettey. The same year there was added a department of special elocution, and military tactics. The first teachers of special elocution were J. W. Rush and Mrs. Lola Rush. Prior to that time the managers of the school would employ teachers of elocution to visit the school and give a course of instruction in elocution. The teachers previously employed to give instruction in elocution were Prof. Hamlin and Prof. Kidd. Prof. Rush also took charge of Military Tactics. At that time the Government had not yet sent an officer to take charge of the department. The same year the management also employed a teacher to give instruction in orchestral instruments.

In 1881 was established a school in Telegraphy. The first principal of that department was P. W. Ream. In 1883 was established a department of Architecture. The first teacher was J. C. Holland. In 1881 there was also established a College of Engineering. In 1882 J. M. DeFord was the first graduate in Civil Engineering. In 1884-85 the U. S. Government detailed Second Lieutenant H. L. Roberts of the 19th Cavalry of the U. S. Army to take charge of the military department of the school. That year there was also established a College of Law. The first teacher was J. Ross Lee, A. B., L.L. B. Prof. Lee received the degree of L.L. B. from the University of Michigan. That year there was also established a Medical department.

In 1885 the school was chartered by the state of Ohio as Ohio Normal University with full power to confer all degrees.

In the school year 1885-86 there was established a College of Pharmacy. The first teacher was Prof. Ashbrook. -

In the Fall of 1875 the North-western Normal then located at Fostoria, Seneca County, Ohio, under the management of Prof. J. Frise Richard, was bought and removed to Ada, as much so as a school can be bought and moved.

In 1878-79 the building now known as the Administration building was erected. In 1883 the frame building with four rooms now used as a Fraternity Hall was erected by the school. In 1895 the building known as the Pharmacy building was erected.

The largest annual enrollment was in 1900, 3349.

In August, 1899, the school was transferred by deed to the Trustees of the Central Ohio Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church.—H. S. L.

Senior Class History.

---

SHE Class of "10," composed of 153 worthy members, is certainly a cosmopolitan class. Almost every profession open to College graduates will for the years to come have within its folds members of our class. Go where you will you will find the Alumni of the O. N. U. Where great legal battles are fought there we find the O. N. U. man. Where a tunnel is to be chizzled or a great bridge to be constructed,—back of it all you are almost certain to find an Ada man with a ready hand and a warm heart glad to talk of the old O. N. U. days. We feel confident that the members of this class are no exception to this rule and in years to come each in his special line will continue to make good for himself and reflect credit upon his Alma Mater. For several years our class was unorganized. Like "Topsy" they just growed. However one starry May night a call to arms was heard. An enemy had been sighted bearing hard upon shores ready to seize our only belongings, our honor and class spirit.

On May 5, 1909, an organization was hastily effected of which Mr. C. F. Kurtz was made president. The class under the leadership of its able president sailed fourth to battle with the enemy the Seniors of "09".

The memory of this great day will not soon be forgotten. Never in the history of the school was a more unique and better planned "Junior day" pulled off. Never from the memories of some of the members of "09" will their ride down town and back and their subsequent imprisonment in "The Cage" be effaced.

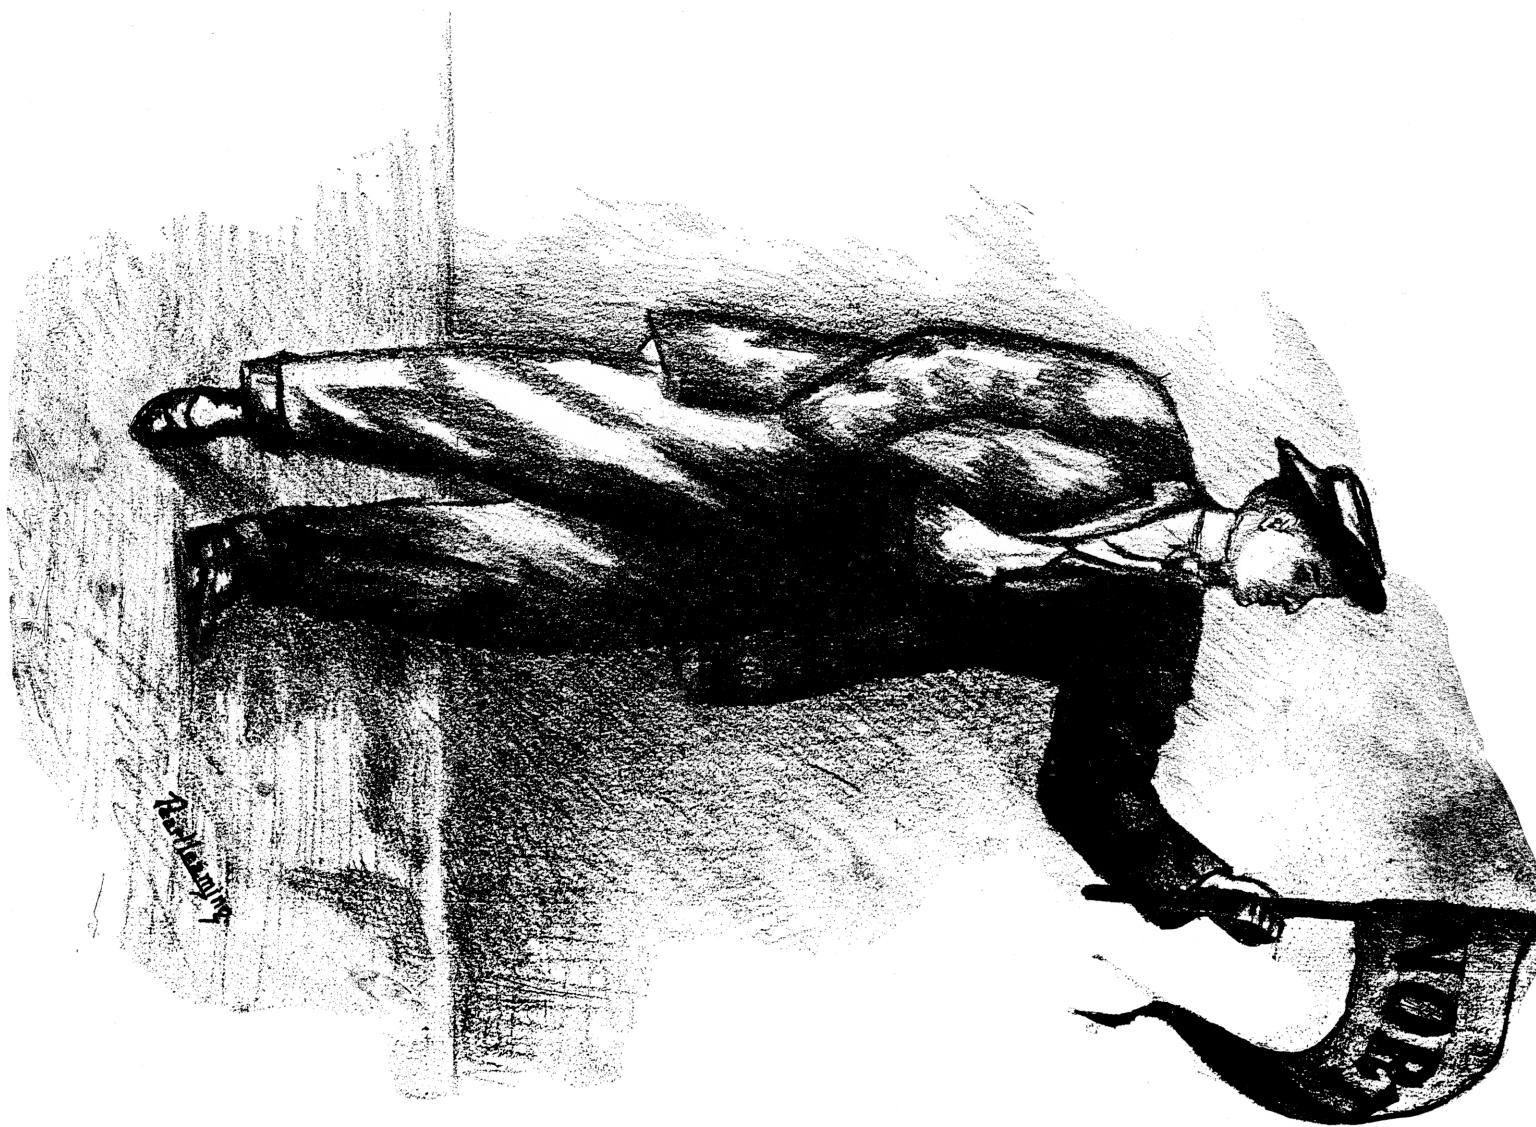

Even the faculty were compelled to admit the day a success on account of the general good nature which prevailed and the comic incidents which occurred. Eastman's auto and Johnston's calf were decided successes. Yet no destruction of property beyond a little tramped grass took place and we all went to work to make our names as seniors.

At the head of our organization this year, we have Mr. Walter Davidson who deserves great credit for his untiring efforts and good generalship in behalf of the Class of "10". Come what will you can depend upon "Davy's" making a success of things.

During our school life in the O. N. U. we have witnessed her rapid strides forward until she now stands with some of the best universities in the land. Chicago, Harvard, Yale and others accept our grades. Our athletic efforts have attracted the attention of the most widely known schools of the land and they have gladly consented to become our competitors.

As a fitting tribute to our class and University, the most distinguished man in the world, The President of the United States, has agreed to spend from 9 A. M. to 3 P. M. June 3, 1910, as the guest of the President of our school during which time he will deliver our Class Address.

May our future be as pleasant and unspotted as the past, and may we, when we have come to shuffle off this mortal coil, leave the world better for the class of "10" having lived in it.

Junior Clas History.

JLTHOUGH we can not distinguish ourselves by taking A. B., B. S., C. E., L.L. B. and various other degrees, the Seniors realize our might, for they gather in groups and discuss the Juniors until the air is full of an exciting buzz. Almost every day it is whispered, "Tomorrow is Junior Day."

The blow of a whistle, the ring of a bell at an unusual hour, the crack of a gun, all are blamed on to the Junior. This serves to disturb the peace of the dignified seniors that even their slumbers are short and light. The magnanimous Junior Executive Committee deemed it wise to call a meeting of the class to take step in relieving the distress of our dearly loved elders.

We realize that when a ship is about to take up its anchor to sail across the deep blue unknown it must be strong in every part of its make up. A weakness of the hull might cause it to disappear into the frothy, open arms of the sea. It is not the desire of the class of 1911 to weaken the hull or even the fog horn of this big, splendidly equipped and supplied steamer of 1910. Or to weaken the constitution of the passengers on board by frightening them into holding protective midnight sessions, as they are about ready to draw in their gang-planks, ready for the voyage of life.

The Juniors, too, have a ship well under construction. It is difficult to say just when its plan was begun. Was it in making the first angle in the geometry class in the study of chemical combinations of elements, in the chemical laboratory or the study of the mechanism of machinery in first Physics? Let this be as it will but each member of the class pursuing what course he may, is instrumental in helping the architects, Dr. Smith and the various professors in the progress of its structure.

We have in our class the engineers who take pains to carry out the importance of the smallest details. Although much has already been done in the way of buiding dikes, bridges and railways, still great and promising are the demands of the future.

In the Liberal Art Department we persue the study of the sciences that are but in their infancies. 'Tis true that Aristotle was such a student, but we have not yet recovered from the check placed upon the movement of that time. In the study of languages we still tread the individual path. "There is no royal highway to knowledge," is still true as in the days of long ago. That some of our sternest qualities come from the law department is visible in the execution of our business meeting, to which no one is admitted without Junior credential. "Laying a motion on the table," is one of their chief hobbies,".

Now, did I hear some one say pharmics—Oh yes! they are still here; thro their skillful blending of pink and white powder the majority of people are kept well. Thus we build our ship, soon to take the place of the one that is so nearly completed. We learn that the chief glory of living lies not in the present moment, but that the present ought to be a stepping stone to a higher plane of living in the furtue.

"The sad life of a student's heart is.
To meet to love and then to part."

Newcomer's School of Expression.

NEWCOMER'S School of Expression was founded in 1900 at Ada, Ohio, as a private school of Speech Arts. In 1908 it was affiliated with the Ohio Northern University with Prof. Newcomer in charge. The school has always been noted for the thoroughness of its work and its advanced methods of training. To-day it is one of the best known and most thoroughly equipped schools of Expression in the United States.

Its teachers are not only specialists in their respective lines of teaching but each and everyone is well and favorably known on the Lyceum Platform with years of successful experience to his credit.

The school offers the following courses of study; The General Culture Course, forty weeks; Professional Course, eighty weeks; Oratorical Course, eighty weeks; Clergyman's Course, eighty weeks; Dramatic Course, eighty weeks; Physical Training Course, forty weeks, and the Stammerer's Course, requiring from ten to forty weeks for completion.

The methods of this school differ materially from the methods of most of the Schools of Expression. We train by culture and development and not by the imitative methods or systems. The many misconceptions of Expression arise, chiefly, from confusing it with appearance.

Expression is the result not of physical but of psychic action at the moment of utterance. The physical actions are directly caused by mental action. The usual view is that every defect in the use of voice and gesture is associated with some local constriction, and that for every abnormal action or habit some exercise to restore the specific part can always be given. While this is true, it is but a half truth. Every abnormal action has its cause in the mind.

Hence technical training must always be united with work for the removal of the causes of faults and for the restoring of the primary actions and conditions. This enables the student to become himself conscious of the right modes of expression, develops him without mechanical rules, and produces no artificial results.

No study is more important. Expression is the manifestation of life, and speaking in some form is vitally necessary for the assimilation of truth and the awakening to a consciousness of personal power. It is used by everyone, who is not dumb, and in every walk of life. We live in proportion to what we give. Without a working knowledge of the principles of Expression and its real function in life we can never give effective utterance to our best thoughts and we can never appear to the best advantage in the social or business world.

Our education only becomes practical in proportion as it prepares us for social efficiency.

History of Engineering Department.

THE College of Engineering connected with the Ohio Northern University had its beginning like other departments of the University, limited in its work at first, but continued to grow until it is among the strongest departments of the University. The first class was organized in the summer of 1868 and consisted of three members. The instructors secured a compass and level from an ex-county surveyor. The first catalog of the school was published in the summer of 1871, and in it was published a course of surveying. In the catalog of 1876, in the classical course, third year, one of the branches named for the Fall term was surveying and engineering. The school then purchased a transit, but it was soon discovered that it required several terms to prepare students for the ordinary work to be accomplished by a county surveyor, and from two to three terms were devoted to the subject of surveying and engineering. During the school year 1880 and '81 the trustees organized a Department of Civil Engineering. The course was first published in the catalog of 1881 and '82. It was not extensive, and only required sixty weeks to complete the course. The first graduate from that course was J. M. DeFord; that was the Commencement of 1882.

In the school year of 1882 and '83 there was also established a Department of Architecture. Mr. J. C. Holland, a graduate of Cornell University was employed as first teacher of Architecture. In the school year of 1891 and '92 the course of Civil Engineering was lengthened. The graduates of the College of Engineering found no trouble in getting positions. As a letter received by President Lehr from J. T. Richards, Asst. Chief Engineer of Pa. R. R. Co., plainly shows.

PHILADELPHIA, PA., May 26, 1892.

H. S. LEHR, A. M.

President of the Ohio Normal University, Ada, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:

In answer to your inquiry, I am pleased to state that we have quite a number of your educated young men on the engineering corps of the Pennsylvania R. R. Co., and find that they compare quite favorably indeed with those of other educational institutions in this country and in Europe.

There are advantages which your system of education has over those of most other institutions. A notable one is fitting the young men with special, and yet complete courses, thus giving them mainly what they want, and saving for them all the time and money possible. Thus they start early in the line which they have selected for a life long pursuit.

Your Normal University should recommend itself to very many young men of the best material, and eminently suited by birth to manage the greatest problems of the world, yet with neither time nor money to allot for completing the full classical course. Such young men are found in the country with good parentage, a natural inclination to love books and to seek knowledge, with strong physique, yet not the possessor of sufficient money to pay their way through four long years after ending their Academic course. I am a great admirer nevertheless, of the usual long courses, and recommend them above all else for a young man with money, time, natural inclination to love books, and a physique to feed the brain. Yet outside of those especially fortunate in their birth, the great masses are excluded. It is proper for me to mention another, and most unfortunate class of young men coming from colleges. I refer to those who are ruined by being forced through the long courses of education, with no natural fitness for what they have to pass through; their health is destroyed, money wasted, and the best years of their life absolutely lost. They then face the world, and are further down cast by finding there is no manager of the large institutions, whether Railways, Banking Houses, Steamship Lines or Manufacturing Establishments, has use for them, except always to remain at the bottom of the ladder. A well selected course in your Normal University might save many of these bright young men, and yet fit them eminently for a suitable line to follow through life.

I am particularly attached to your school, because I think it gives young men the opportunity to have health, practical learning, economy of time and money, and starts him in a business early in life with the opportunity possible to lead them to success.

Yours very truly,

JOSEPH T. RICHARDS,
Asst. Chief Engineer, Pa. R. R. Co.

In the school year of 1802 and '93 the course was again lengthened; it then required eighty weeks to complete the prescribed course. In 1894 the course was again lengthened; it then required ninety weeks to complete the course. In that year the trustees also organized the course in Mechanical Engineering. In the school year of 1895 and '96 there was also established a course in Electrical Engineering, and all the courses were lengthened. It then required one hundred weeks to complete any one of the three courses.

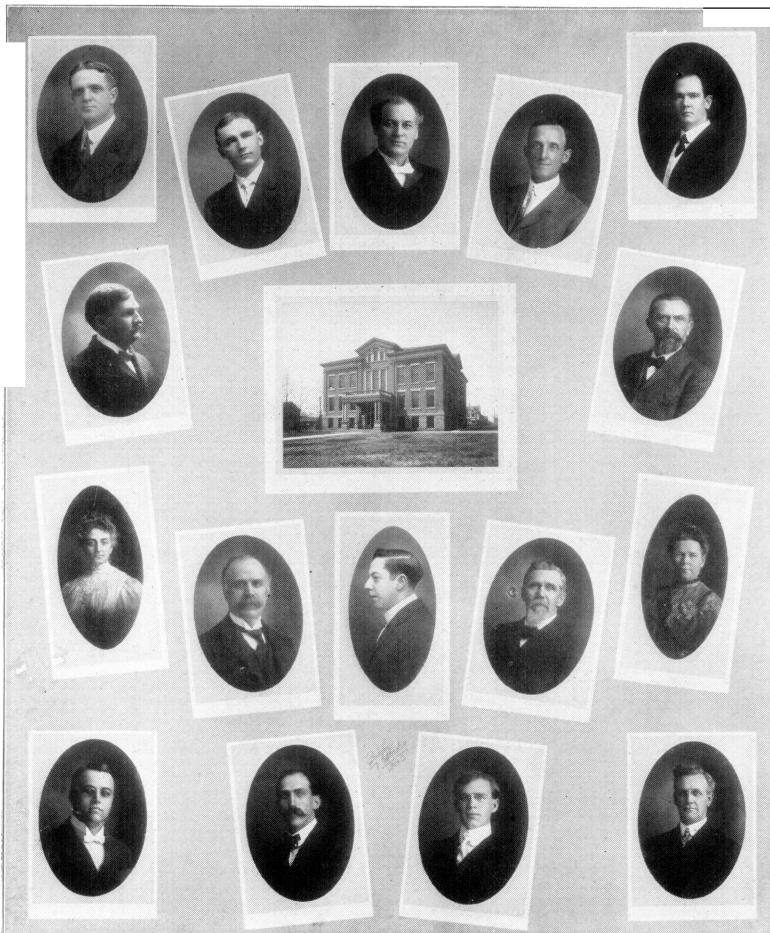

During this year the Engineering Society was organized by the students of the Engineering Department for the discussion of engineering subjects. Also a list of the leading professional magazines and newspapers were installed for the use of the department. The department continued to grow in number and efficiency until 1903 when the various courses were again lengthened to one-hundred and twenty weeks. At which time the subjects taught were in harmony with those of the leading institutions of the country. Prof. P. P. Stewart having taken charge of the department immediately upon his graduation from the Sheffield Scientific Schools. A policy of thorough advertising and revision of all the courses resulted in a rapid increase in the attendance. After two years service Mr. Stewart withdrew, and the present Dean took charge of the department.

In 1907 Prof. D. D. Ewing was employed and as a result of his efforts the progress of the Electrical Department has been most pronounced. During the past year it became necessary to add another instructor to the teaching corps. At the present time the students of the department appear at sometime during their course before fourteen different instructors. With a modern laboratory for the mechanical and electrical students, and a complete equipment of instruments for the civil students, we feel justified in saying that our school deserves the recognition and patronage that is due any first class institution of a similar nature.

The Wrong Brothers' Aeroplane History.

HE Progressive spirit of the O. N. U. Engineering Department is annually reflected by the various complicated and theoretical contrivances built by her students.

At the ninth exhibit, among many other interesting features, was shown the latest development in aerial craft. This high powered, electric controlled, "Queen of the Air," sailed majestically above the heads of the astonished visitors at the dizzy altitude of nearly 6000 milimeters, while the massive propellers revolved at the dangerously high periphery speed of 50,000 revolutions per term of ten weeks.

All its interesting mechanism was clearly yet minutely explained by Prof. D. D. Ewing in his memorial address, "Twentieth Century Aerial Navigation."

Department of Biology.

OUR new laboratory equipment for work in Botany and Zoology and the modern method of studying subjects are prominent features of progress in the University. The work in these subjects is similar in scope to that of the best institutions. All class room instruction—lecture and quiz—is based upon the work of the laboratory.

Here we catch the glimpses of Nature that make life a panorama of beauty and fascination, and learn those laws that enable man to assume his right position in the universe and his relation to the Infinite. Scientific discoveries of the last century have contributed immeasurably to the welfare and happiness of man and it is meet that the University graduate should be placed in command of scientific facts and methods in order that he may be successful in the school of life.

History of College of Law.

HE College of Law was established by the Trustees of the Ohio Northern University as a Department of the University, with Henry S. Lehr, President, and J. Ross Lee, Dean, in the year 1885. Its alumni now engaged in the practice of law are to be found in nearly every state and territory in the United States and in every city of Ohio. The present Dean, Prof. Axline, has been at the head of the College of Law since 1888.

The success of the alumni speaks for the department. A glance at the records of those taking the Bar Examinations from the O. N. U. pays the most glowing tribute to the thoroughness of the work and the efficiency of the faculty. As for ourselves, we, the Class of 1910, boast of nothing great, neither do we hide anything small. We hold our record open to the public gaze and bid you judge from what we have accomplished rather than from what we might say in any vain-glorious comment on ourselves.

Miles W. Townsend, LL. B., Chillicothe, Ohio. President Philo Literary Society, '10; Cornet Soloist par excellence; Baritone soloist and capable entertainer. Artistic in temperament he is a "star" of great magnitude. Girls? I should think so! But be of good cheer, he has not "went."

Foster E. King, LL. B., Elmira, New York. The boy with the "boss back home in the office." And oh, that "Haw! Haw!" that chases his smile. Cage it, old man—"New York's going Democratic." Some talker, too.

Marion S. S. Seiler, LL. B., "Punksky", Pennsylvaina. Base Ball Star, '10; A man of many "Frats," popular and good to look upon. His hair standing erect gave him an exceeding knowing air and, verily, his head WAS all right, but his legs were too short.

Milo C. Ely, LL. B., Coshocton, Ohio. Member Student Senate, representing the Law Department, '10. A man of few words, he garnered the "dope." His light was hidden under a bushel, but it never goes out. Neither does Milo C.

Jacob Tetlow, LL. B., Washingtonville, Ohio. His creed—"What one desires to know one must ask about." "Well, just suppose, Professor—well now we had a case (legal case, of course)—well if— but now, Prof." et cet., ad lib., indefinitely. But he got the "dope."

SONGS.

LAW SONG. (Molly Lee).

BY HARRY W. JACKSON.

There's a Law School in Ohio,
Where my thoughts will ever dwell,
And of her I'll tell, Why I love her well—
She's a great school, is Old Northern,
And to her I'll be true,
While I'll proudly wear the Law pin—O. N. U.
And we'll rally round Old Axie, and Willis once again,
And when again we meet in town our heart will beat in tune.

Chorus—

Boys, we'll soon be pining,
For our days in school are few;
When the years declining,
Bring back thoughts of O. N. U.;
We'll ever be true, my dear old school to you,
Mid cold North blast or field of cotton,
Old school, you'll not be forgotten
“Law” of O. N. U.

I MAY BE A SENIOR—BUT A YEAR FROM TODAY?

(Tune—“Rings on my fingers, etc.”)

Commencement day may pass away, with ceremonies grand,
The president may have his say, may take us by the hand,
May make commencement brighter, the brightest of them all
They will call us Seniors gay—when we come out decked

so gay,
But to ourselves we'll say—“Sure we hate to go away.”

Chorus.

I may be a Senior, quite jolly and grand,
Big men here to talk to me, the greatest in the land,
But what can I look for a year from today,
When others hold the place I hold to-day, O Say!

—H. W. J.

“THE FAIR LITTLE CO-ED.”

(Tune of “Old Oaken Bucket.”)

How dear to my heart are the scenes of Old Ada,
It's ranshakel sidewalks; It's grand boarding clubs,
But how dear to my heart was that pretty young co-ed,
That winsome young co-ed I took to the hop.
How Prexy got fussy on parties and dances,
And raved and in Chapel said he would expel,
All chappies and lassies the dance held entranced,
But we kept on hopping—will we go to —well!

Chorus.—

So light and fantastic, she tripped to the music,
This fair little co-ed, I took to the hop,
I told her I loved her, she married another,
But do I regret it—well I should say not.

—H. W. J.

School of Fine Arts

---

HE true work of Art is but a shadow of divine perfection—Michael Angelo, the artist, beholds in nature more than she herself is conscious of.—H. James.

The O. N. U. School of Fine Arts is conducted upon the most modern methods—that of training the eye and mind by studying direct from nature. Working from a copy is stultifying and detrimental to the student, causing him to lose not only the time spent in such study but an equal quota of time in learning what he has acquired by that training. Communication is kept up with Art Centers and a ready hearing given to all new methods and theories. The principle upon which the school is founded is to maintain the highest efficiency, the severe practice of academic drawing and painting, from life, from the antique, and from objects; and around this practice, as a living stem, to group the various departments of art education. The idea prevails that one can learn to draw by patiently copying the lines of an object placed before them; nothing is further from the fact, for of the thousands who consider themselves students of art, few learn to draw accurately and rapidly. The reason is that without mastering the principles that underlie academic work, no one can become a draughtsman.

Y. M. C. A.

WHAT is the University Y. M. C. A., and why does it exist? Just what is its place in the school life? These are questions every thinking reader will ask himself when his eye first falls on the heading of this page.

A SOCIAL CENTER.

In the first place its rooms furnish a pure, elevating social center for young men away from home, and therefore more easily subject to the temptations of College life. In order that it may not degenerate into a mere loafing place the rooms are equipped with magazines, daily papers, exercising apparatus, piano, checkers, chess, and Correspondence and Study tables. The fact that the rooms are constantly in use and that over 600 membership cards have been issued since September 1st shows that the need is being at least partially met.

Aside from this the Association extends an annual "stag" reception to men and a joint reception given the Y. W. C. A. to University students and citizens of Ada. These events have in the past been exceedingly popular and enjoyable affairs.

A RELIGIOUS FORCE.

The Association is the only organization in the school striving to be of service in making men acquainted with the ideals of Jesus Christ. With its Bible Classes, Weekly Devotion Meetings, Public Addresses, Evangelistic Meetings and the individual personal work of its members, it is striving to bring higher ideals and loftier purposes to the University men.

AN ALTRUISTIC ORGANIZATION.

The Y. M. C. A. thoroughly believes in all the legitimate activities and organizations of the school and is doing all it can to be a "booster". Many men misunderstand the purpose of the organization and think of it as just one more society added to the already crowded life. But such is not the case. It is an organization broad enough to include all in its sympathy, and not limited to any one set of men. The 1909 Foot Ball Squad gratefully acknowledged the kindness of the Y. M. C. A. in extending free membership privileges to the foot-ball men during the season. Over 50 members were secured for the Athletic Association at the Y. M. C. A. desk. 45 O. N. U. lecture course season tickets were disposed of for the benefit of the Literary Societies.

Captain Holcomb and the military men at Camp Smith remember the work of the Y. M. C. A. in the camp. Captain Holcomb was especially pleased and said "You cannot put it too strong to express my appreciation of what you are doing here."

The foreign students of the University have been brought together in a Cosmopolitan Club largely through the influence of the Y. M. C. A.

Through the Employment Bureau 103 university students were assisted in finding nearly $1300.00 worth of work,

TRAINING FOR SERVICE.

Last of all the Y. M. C. A. is striving more and more to enlist men in service for others. The workers of the organization are volunteers. Over 50 men have served on the various committees during the year. As a result of these services these men will be better equipped to serve the common good in whatever community they go. In conclusion the Association wishes to gratefully acknowledge the help and sympathy of the various members of the Class of 1910, and to wish them God-speed in the journey of life.

HE Young Women's Christian Association of the O. N. U. was organized Nov. 14, 1884. The first prayermeetings were held in the different rooms of the students. There were, at the beginning, only a few girls who met together as a Christian band. This was the nucleus of the Association, which later on branched out in different directions, taking up various lines of Christian work.

The work done now includes the support of a girl in a mission school in India. We contribute a regular pledge toward the State and National Christian Association work. Many of our members have left us to take up definite Christian work in various parts of the country.

UPPER ROW.

Helen Pond, Pearl Montgomery, Bessie Smith, Esther Kail, Irene Compton, Fern Reynolds.

LOWER ROW.

Bernice Adams, Pearl Leoming, Mrs. Rose Marsh, Sylvia Barnes, Dora Housekeeper.

Not less important than the Christian Association is the Student Volunteer Band which was organized during the past year. The Band welcome to its membership students from all departments of the University who expect to go to the mission field.

Don'ts.

A bunch of "don'ts" from the hand of an old pedagogue in the class.

Don't flinch.

Don't be stingy with your pleasant words: they may do some good.

Don't hurry.

Don't think that anything in conduct is unimportant or indifferent.

Don't think that anything will take the place of good hard work.

Don't take too much advice—keep at your helm and steer your own ship.

Don't be above your business no matter what it may be; but strive to be the best in that line.

Don't acquire an appetite like Hammond's; it will land you in the alms-house.

Don't change your affections as often as Bunston.

Don't ask Prof. Park what he thinks of rival grammarians.

Don't ask Prof. Newcomer to recite his Bear Story; he'll do it anyway.

Don't intimate to Prof. Maglott that there might be something that he doesn't already know; you'll rue it.

Don't make Willis laugh any more; he's too fat now.

Don't Oh, DON'T get Kreglow's Dutch up.

Don't fail to take all of Prexy's good advice.

Don't think about a possibility of ever forgetting the grand, victorious, notorious, GLORIOUS class of 1910.

Franklin Literary Society

---

THE Franklin Literary Society was organized in 1871 and received its charter from the State of Ohio in 1884.

According to Section 2, Article I of the Society's constitution, the object of its organization was "the propagation of Literature, Morality, and Friendship." From these fundamental purposes, the Society has never deviated except to broaden and expand as new conditions of thought and learning demanded.

There being three literary organizations in the Ohio Northern University, the growth of any one has meant triumph against the strongest of competition. From the earliest crude contest (the foot race which gave the Franklins the right to occupy the new hall), to the great Lehr-Edge oratorical contest, the records as well as the Society's progress show that the Franklins' have ever won their share of the inter-society events.

The onward march of the Franklins, though slow during its earlier history, has been constant as well as along all lines. Formerly the literary exercises consisted mainly of debates and recitations, both of a miscellaneous nature. These have been changed from time to time until now the programs are so extensive they afford opportunity for advancement in expression along all lines of thought and intellectual activity.

Franklin oratory has been very much stimulated by the offering of the annual Kuhn Prize. In recent years these contests have been made grand features of the Society. The training derived from this source is directly responsible for the fact that Franklins have won such a large per cent of inter-society oratorical contests.

Perhaps owing to the strict competition, ill-feeling and jealousies have in the past arisen between the Franklins and her sister societies. In recent years, we are glad to say, this has been almost completely eliminated by the educating of a public sentiment against such conditions and by the adoption of conjoint articles to which all the societies have adhered closely.

The material progress of the Society has been very great especially within the past three years. During this time a new Steinway grand piano has been purchased and paid for. And in the last fourteen months the hall has been papered and repainted, new stage furniture and rugs secured, and a new lighting equipment installed at a total cost of more than four hundred dollars. With these improvements Franklin hall is without doubt one of the best and most attractively furnished halls in Ada.

For these prosperous condition, the Franklin Society is indebted to its many loyal members, both present and past.

Philomathean Literary Society

THE Philomathean Literary Society of the Ohio Northern University is one of the oldest and most prosperous literary societies in the middle west. Within its hallowed, historical walls hundreds of young men and young women have caught an inspiration that has spurred them on in their quest for literary achievements. The society was organized on August 18th, 1871, in Bastable hall, when one hundred and forty-seven students assembled to assist in the organization. Dr. Lehr presided. G. W. Rutledge was the first president of the society, Miss Lacha Craner the first vice president, A. D. Snively the first secretary, Calvin Shockley the first chorister, and Miss Acha Marshall the first critic. The first meeting place of the society was the crude basement of the old Methodist Episcopal Church. Prosperity seemed to assume from the very first the role of guardian of the Philomathiean Society. Its membership steadily increased, its finances grew as a plant grows that is planted in rich soil. At length the basement of the church was too small to accommodate the audiences that assembled at the society meetings. In the course of time the society succeeded in securing the north upstairs room of the Administration building as its headquarters, which it retains to this day. A great deal of money has been spent in improving this hall, building up a library and securing an ideal equipment. The society has the finest and costliest piano in Ada. A chandelier, which has just been discarded to make way for modern electric fixtures, cost the society six hundred and twenty-two dollars. The Philomathean Literary Society has sent out into the world many brilliant men who are making good. There is Ralph Parlette, known from ocean to ocean as a humorist of superior ability. He got his start in Philo hall. He told a story just to see how it would go, and it went so well that he has become famous as a consequence. Ralph D. Cole, Congressman from the Eighth Ohio District, is a Philo. Hon. Aaron S. Watkins, president of Asbury College in Kentucky, and candidate for Vice President of the United States at the last election, Prohibitionist ticket, is a conspicuous Philo. Other noted Philos are: John Davison, superintendent of Lima schools; Dr. S. D. Fess, president Antioch College, Yellow Springs, Ohio; Hon. S. A. Hoskins, president Board of Trustees, Ohio Northern University; W. W. Poultney, Treasury Office, Washington City; Dr. B. F. Finkel, professor mathematics, Drury College, Mo.; Hon. H. C. Campbell, now a millionaire at Portland, Oregon; G. F. Getty, now a millionaire at Los Angeles, Cal.; Hon. E. L. Miller, editor Duluth Trade News. The Philo Star, a historical society publication, was made famous by such promoters as Jerome Campbell, E. L. Miller and Miss Lizzie Mooney. Miss Pearl A. M. Stahl, one of the wealthiest Philo ladies, has established an annual oratorical prize of twenty five dollars, the first contest having been held on Friday evening, April 29, 1910, there being nine contestants.

ADELPHIAN HALL

History of the Adelphian Literary Society.

---

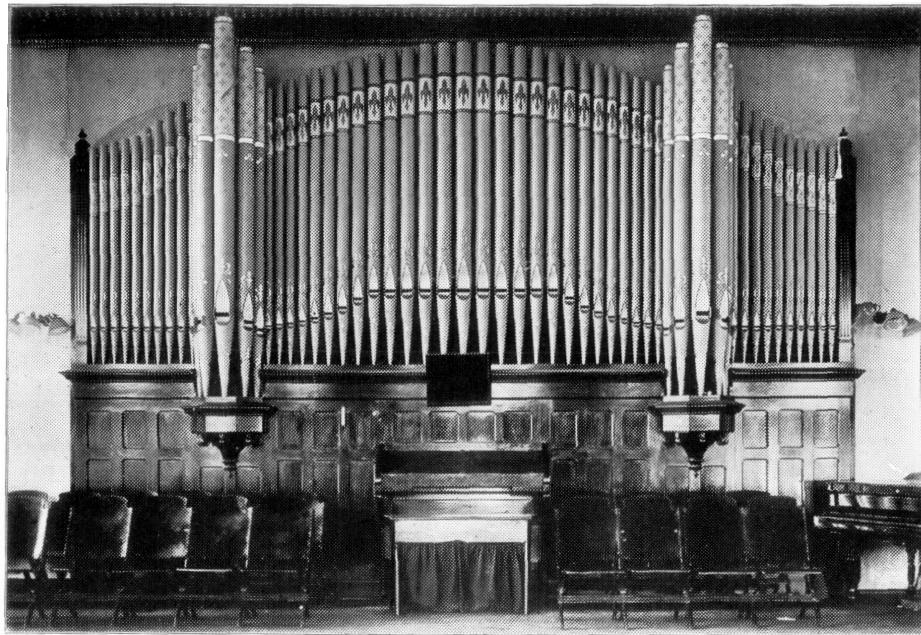

HE Adelphian Literary Society was founded Sept. 3, 1880. The sister societies already existing had become very acrimonious and the establishment of a mediator between them became necessary. This fact was no sooner visible than it was perceived by the eagle eye of the founder and forthwith executed.

The new society suffered from many new and peculiar epithets but its true appellation was Adelphia, a brother. The hidden talent, however, which began to make itself felt changed opinion regarding it, and it was looked upon in its true relationship. On the 15th of April, 1890, the society took out a charter under the laws of Ohio which gave it the rights and privileges of a corporate body. Since then the mediator has grown rapidly.

Much credit is due to Prof. and Mrs. Maglott for work in aiding us and especially to Dr. Lehr for the origin and defense of Adelphia. In behalf of the lady members who have lent their efforts in time of trial we can truly say that they have shown the truest type of American womanhood.

The object of the society is social, moral, and literary culture. The society emblem, the anchor and shield, signify that by the first we shall hold fast to all that is good, the shield shall protect us from all baneful influences. The society has produced, and may it continue to produce, men and women who can and will go forth and do the work which the world demands them to do.

OFFICERS OF MILITARY DEPARTMENT

History of Military Department.

---

N 1897 the Military Department of the University was equipped with Springfield Rifles Caliber 45; this being the first time that the entire battalion was equipped with the same rifle.

Lieut. Baxter's detail ended in 1898 and he was followed by 2nd Lieut. H. J. Price, 24th U. S. Inf. He had been a student in the University some years before and had won the honor as captain of Co. B in 1891. Being thus acquainted with the problem of the department here, he was able to bring about many improvements. In 1900 he was recalled because of the demand for officers after the war. We are glad to be able to say that Mr. Price is now captain in the 2nd Reg't U. S. Inf. stationed at Fort Thomas, Kentucky.

For three years after his recall the department was without an army officer at its head. During that time cadet officers were in charge. Their care and attention together with the development of marshall spirit throughout the country kept the department on the increase rather than the decrease as might have been expected. In 1903 Capt. William Davis, Jr., 10th U. S. Cavalry was detailed here. He had been in the service since 1862. He was a very able officer and a fine disciplinarian. During the two years of his detail he accomplished much for the department and together with his family, made many friends.

Capt. Davis was followed by Capt. Joseph F. Janda, 1st U. S. Inf. in 1905. For some little time before Capt. Janda's arrival the Cadet captains had experienced considerable difficulty in keeping their companies filled because of the expense of the uniform. In the spring of 1907, with a view of reducing the expense, a uniform consisting of white duck trousers, blue blouse and cap was adopted. This accomplished its mission for that year and prepared the way for other changes soon to follow.

During the summer of the last year of Capt. Janda's detail, the faculty granted an allowance of $10.00 to each organization, to be applied upon their expenses. These expenses had formerly fallen upon the captain, and the object of this measure was to place the captain's rank within reach of men of ability who could not bear the expense formerly incurred.

Because his regiment was ordered to the Phillipines and wishing to do his foreign service with it, Capt. Janda's request for relief from this detail was granted at the end of his second year. Although it was undoubtedly best for him, it was with deep regret that his many friends bade him good-bye.

Our present cornmandent, Capt. F. P. Holcomb, 10th U. S. Cav., arrived in August, 1907. Fortunately he was sent to our department at a time when great changes were taking place. Without exception he has taken advantage of the opportunities resulting from these changes.

Early in the year 1910, the Springfield Rifle, caliber 45, was replaced by the U. S. Magazine Rifle, Model 1898. This, together with the fact that there was still dissatisfaction as to the expense of a uniform, prompted Capt. Holcomb to change the style of uniform making it consist of khaki shirt, trousers and leggins, tan shoes and campaign hat. This, in appearance, was almost the same as the uniform in use in the regular army with the exception of the absence of a blouse.

The greatest innovation, however, since the founding of our department, was the establishment of our annual camp. This was originated, planned and accomplished by Capt. Holcomb the first year of his detail.

Being something new, two of the companies were backward about endorsing it; so the first camp only included Companies B and D, two detachments of artillery, the band, one detachment of signal corps. The two last mentioned organizations were established early in the year 1908.

They went into camp on the Connor farm, four miles south of town early in May and after five days returned tanned and sunburned, but happy and ready for contest. It was conceded by many to be the event of their lives and by all to be the crowning event in the life of our Military department up to that time.

At the beginning of the school year 1908-9, Capt. Holcomb designed a uniform in color the same as that of the preceding year, but in pattern and quality the same as that in use in the U. S. army. This uniform was adopted and has given satisfaction for two years. Because of its low cost and its practical usefulness for other than military purpose it will probably remain the regulation of the school.

On May 21, 1909, the entire battalion, two detachments of artillery, one detachment of signal corps, one detachment of hospital corps and the band went into camp on the farm of Mr. Applegate, a Civil War Veteran, living  $3\frac{1}{2}$  miles north-west of Ada. This camp continued for eight days, during which time we were honored by a visit from Gov. Harmon and his staff. Because of the experience of the preceding year, this camp was even more successful and satisfactory than the former one. As before, the men enjoyed the outing and were enabled to acquire a practical understanding of a soldier's life; while at the same time they were preparing for contest. This contest came June 3rd, being one of the most successful and most largely attended in the history of the school.

In January of this year the school purchased regulation sabers for the officers of the battalion, who until this time had been equipped with the old style swords. The work for the year, throughout the department, has been perfectly satisfactory, showing some great improvement over last year.

At the time of this writing the battalion is in excellent condition and eagerly awaiting the government inspection, which takes place May 5th.

June 3rd of this year President William H. Taft delivers the Class address to the Graduating class. The 2nd regiment of O. N. G. has been ordered to Ada for that occasion, but the honor of being the President's personal escort falls to the Cadet battalion. Capt. Holcomb will be in command of all military ceremonies.

Preparations are well under way for camp, which will be held at the same place as last year, from May 21st to 29th. The enthusiasm shown in preparation for this predicts an even larger and grander camp than on either of the previous years.

The following letter has been lately received by Capt. Holcomb:

STATE OF OHIO, ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE, COLUMBUS, April 22, 1910.

CAPTAIN F. P. HOLCOMB, U. S. A.,
ADA, OHIO.

SIR:—

I am directed by Governor Judson Harmon to inform you that when he inspected your corps of cadets in camp last spring, he found a very satisfactory state of affairs. He was highly pleased with the sanitary conditions of the camp, and the soldierly bearing of the men. Their discipline in drill and various military duties certainly indicated conscientious and efficient work on your part as their instructor. You are to be congratulated on the result attained.

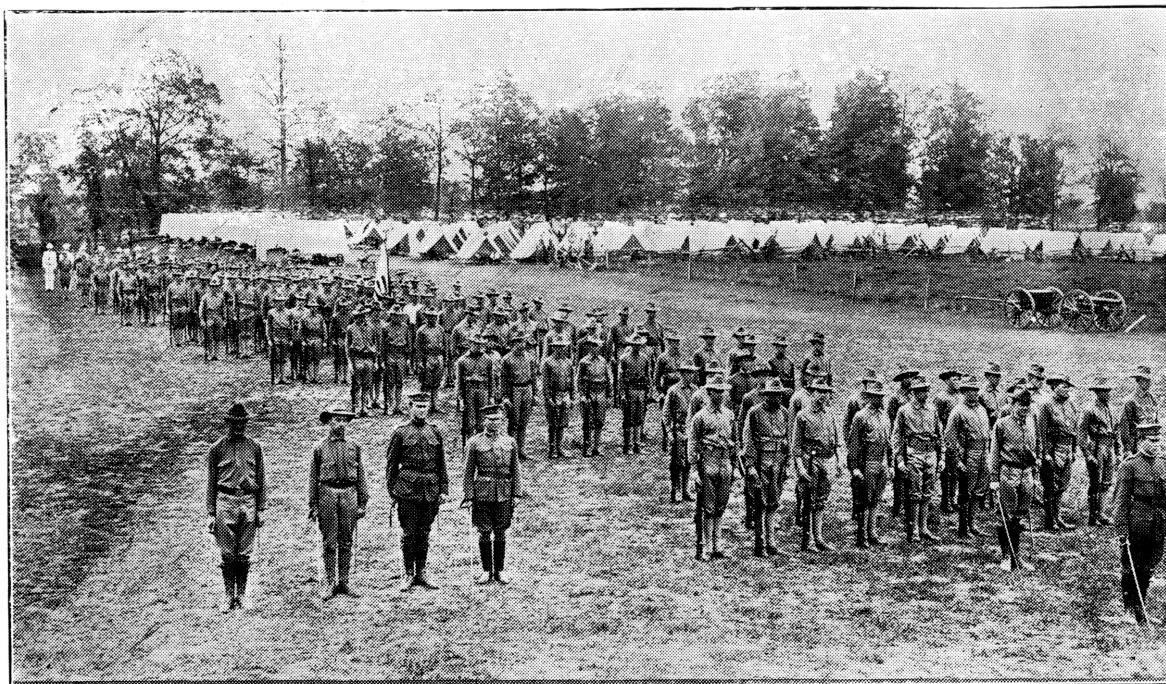

Very sincerely yours,

CHARLES C. WEYBRECHT,

Adjutant General of Ohio.

May the department continue to grow and prosper until the name of every able bodied male student in the University appears upon her rosters. Such is the wish of thousands of members who have derived pleasure and benefit from the O. N. U. Cadet Battalion.

BASE BALL 1908

History of Athletic Association.

IN 1901 the O. N. U. placed her first officially recognized base-ball and foot-ball teams upon the field. These however met with financial reverses, and during the five years following the athletic record of the O. N. U. was rather of a fluctuating nature. This uncertainty led to the formation of the present Athletic Board.

This Athletic Board was organized in 1907 and consists of five faculty members appointed by the president of the University, student managers elected by the student body and coaches. The student managers and coaches being members only during their playing season.

The Athletic Board has absolute charge of all the Athletics of the O. N. U.

PHARMACY

D. C. MOHLER, Ph. G., Ph. L.
Dean of School of Pharmacy

The College of Pharmacy.

L. C. SLEESEMAN, Ph. C., Ph. B.
Director of Laboratories

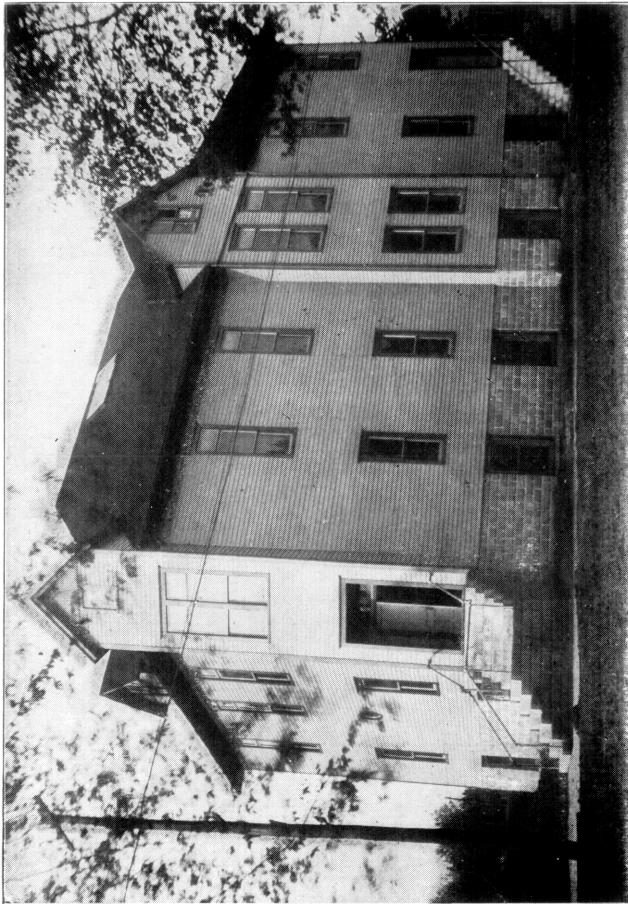

HE purpose of this College of Pharmacy is to help to supply the great demand for EDUCATED PHARMACISTS. Is it not true that the PHARMACIST is just as responsible for the lives of a community as the PHYSICIAN? Is it not also true that he should be just as well equipped with KNOWLEDGE and SKILL to do his part as the Physician? We claim these are indisputable FACTS, and the sole purpose of this college is to prepare young men and women to fill these responsible positions.

The work in this college, while distinct and separate as though entirely independent of all the rest of the university, yet so carefully arranged that our students can attend the other departments without interfering with regular work and with NO ADDITIONAL COST—AN ADVANTAGE NO OTHER COLLEGE running independently CAN OFFER. Our students come in contact with the students of the other departments and their professors, and are thus brought under the broadening influence of university life.

NEW EXTENSIONS.

The phenomenal growth of the college has compelled the management to enlarge the lecture rooms and laboratories at an enormous expense. There is now over ten thousand square feet of floor room in the various laboratories and all modernly equipped. The new pharmacy laboratory and stock room occupies the entire basement of the pharmacy building, while the first floor has been converted into large lecture rooms, except a specimen room and the office of the Dean. The lecture rooms are fitted with "Tablet" arm chairs.

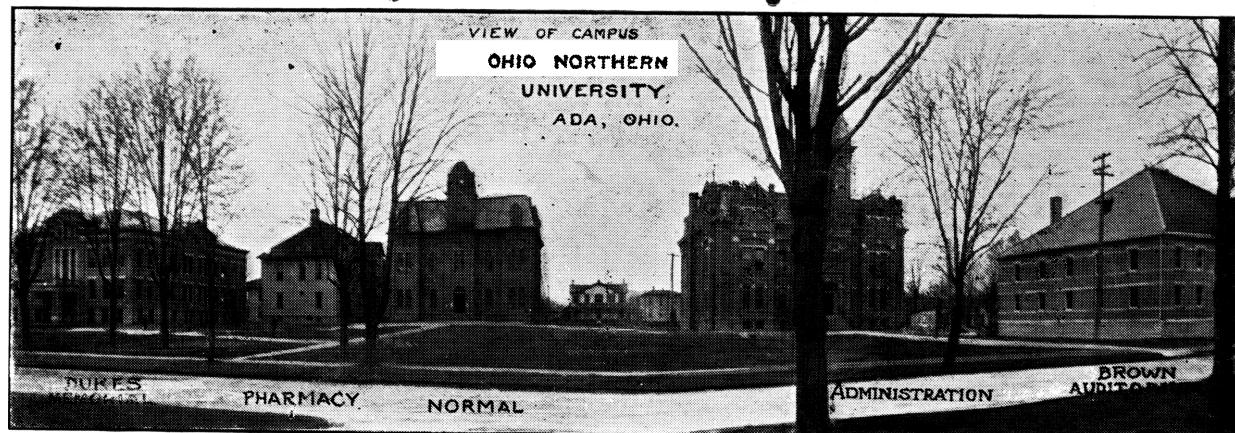

The laboratory is large enough to give an entire outfit to each student. He is thus fully equipped to make all the various preparations himself. This will enable him to become a very useful clerk to his employer.

OUR FRESHMEN

Toast to Freshmen.

---

Here's to our happy school days,
And memories be they bright or blue.
Here's to the years, let them bring what they may,
For best of them all were those at the old O. N. U.
There we made friends we now class as old,
And some we now class as new—
But long may the new be always to us old
And the old ever be to us dear.
In memories of the old O. N. U.
Here's to our Freshmen—
We lift our glass proudly,
And sing their praise loudly—
These lads and lassies of future time.
You are young we know—
But then you will grow—
None can tell how famous and great,
For in your youth you've struck a fine gait—
That you all will make good,
Is a fact well understood.
Wherever we go —we'll sure hear from you later,
And without any fear—
In your care we leave our beloved
Alma Mater.

—R. M.

We the present—"Has Been's"—And the Juniors—
"Who soon will be"—greet you—The Is'ers of the Great Now."

To our noble Freshmen, that great, numerous, restless family of 1910.

The habits of the family are peculiar, they are children
of nature and like the "Flowers that bloom in spring"
they flourish everywhere.

Your vastness, broadness and greatness, no finite mind has conceived. Nor has the little heart of man dreamed just how wide spreading and far-reaching is this, 'genus homo' known as the Freshmen.

They thrive like bees in a hive, about Commencement time they are busy and buzzy, and liable to swarm at most any moment; they appear in unexpected places.

Like stars un-numbered and as vast and far sweeping
as the tail of Haley's Comet may be.

But whether bees or flowers you are in specie, the Juniors and Seniors must do their scientific duty and place you in general or special classification or else you must pass as a freak of creation. But whatever you are and wherever you flourish you are very precocious is true, very useful and honored in the old O. N. U.

Whether little buds or bees, you grow and thrive, in times like these you multiply like microbes and spring up like weeds.

But now you Is-ers, to you we turn in all seriousness,
all pleasantries aside.

The Seniors and Juniors are passing away, they are truly the "Has Been's" and the soon "Will Bes" of tomorrow,
But you are now and of the immediate future.

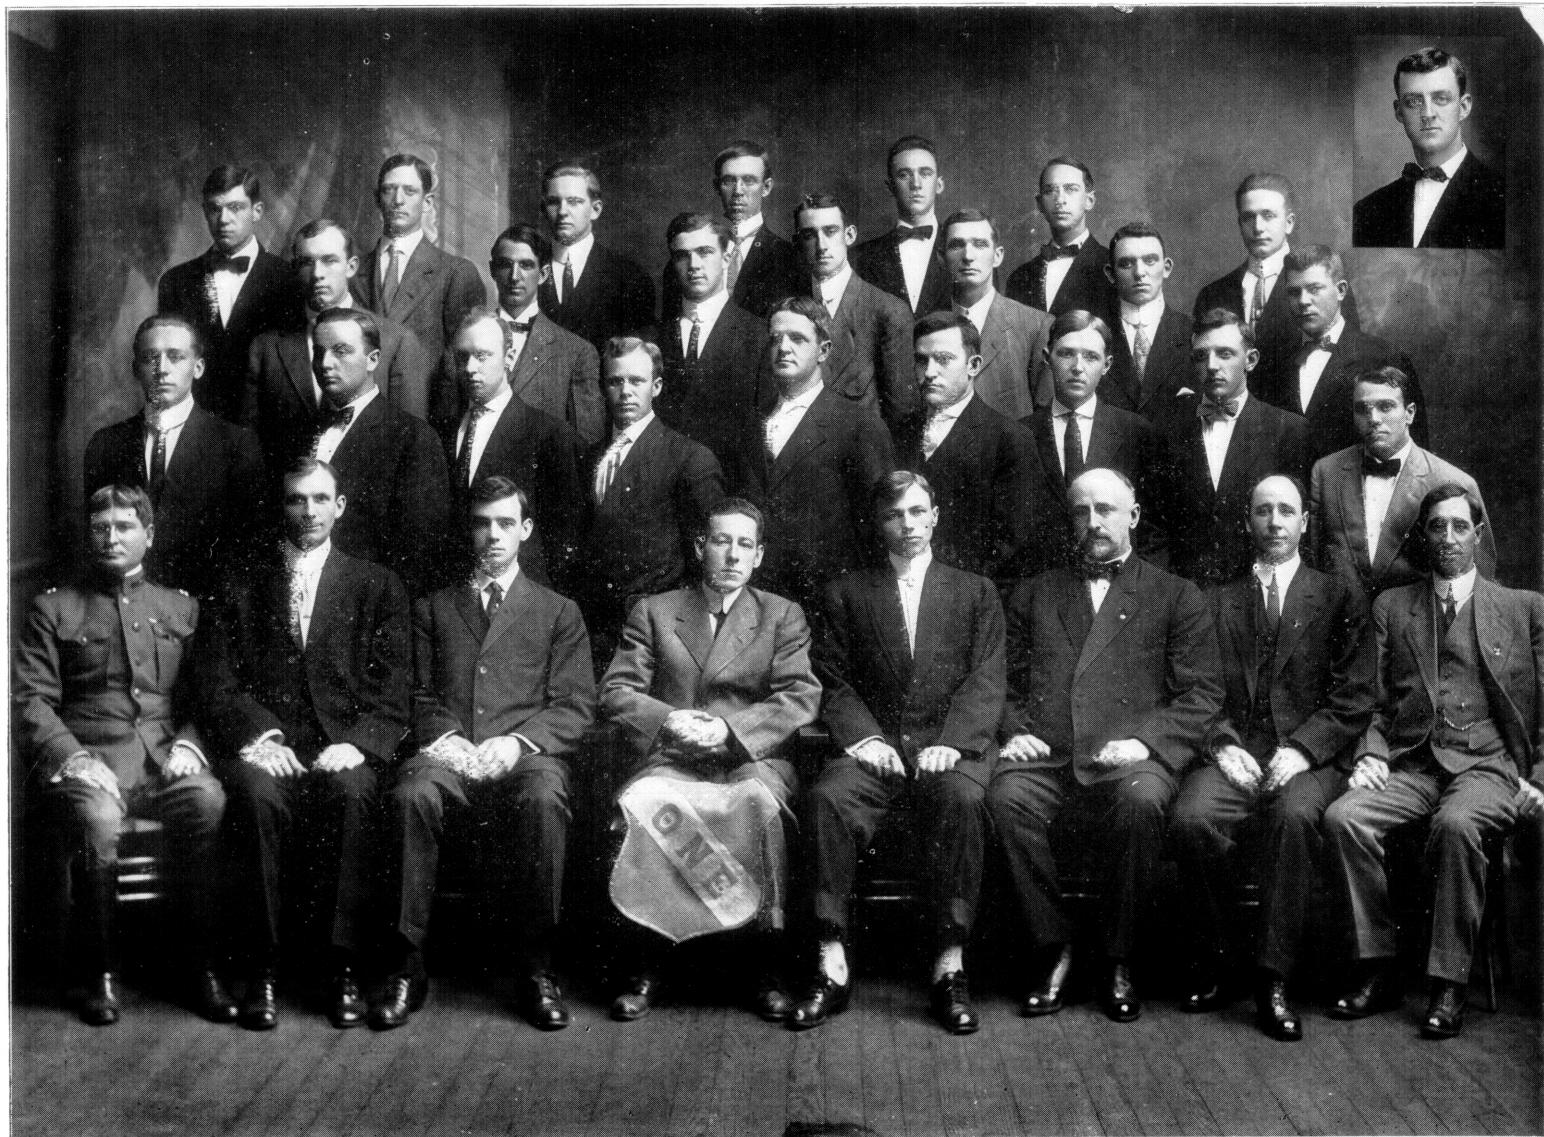

Your song is not of the glories past and gone

But your slogan is sounded in the joy bells
and times to come.

Be true to yourselves and our old Alma Mater. Then will we each and every one face the world with better credentials. Be an honor to the old O. N. U. She in return will yield a wreath of Laurel to you.

Tau Kappa Kappa Sorority.

The Tau Kappa Kappa had its inception in a girls' club that was organized in 1900 while its members were in High School and was known as the "G's." After graduation from Ada High School, they entered the Ohio Northern and took upon themselves the more dignified name of Tau Kappa Kappa and became a College Sorority.

For many years this was the only sorority in the O.N. U. Among the T. K. K's. are to be found several members of the famous Basket Ball Team that held the State Championship for several years. Three of the girls, namely: Miss Hazel Bentley, Miss Vergie Rothrock and Mrs. R. W. Hetrick are the proud possessors of Varsity N's, granted them by the Athletic Association for the creditable and excellent work on Northern Girls' Basket Ball Team.

Senior Jokes.

The following is told of Miss Irene Compton and her friend, when they were seen sitting in the shade of an old sugar in "Coshocton."

He—"Irene, O, won't you be mine?"

She—"I thank you, sir! I claim I am Miss Compton, by choice.

Kurtz:—"Pansy, if you don't marry me, I'll go right out here and hang myself."

Pansy:—"O, don't please, you know mamma don't want you hanging around here.

Mr. Harry W. Jackson does not swim across the Tiber three times like Horatius of old, but he descends a ladder in the wee sma' hours of the night.

Any one wishing to learn fancy barn dancing please inquire of Vergnon Smith.

When Mr. Gretzner was interviewed as to what kind of a class flower he preferred he answered graciously "The Tu-lip please."

The Leach House girls have organized a Society known as the Eta-Beta-Pi, otherwise the Eat-a-bite-a-pie, during the recency of its organization further mention of it will not be made here.

Mayor D. D. Ernsberger has decided to resign his position and turn to Angling for he likes the Pond.

Editor of Comet (under car making repairs):

Beatrice—"Armstrong dear, I am so afraid the machine will start and run over you."

Editor—"Well, if it does my life is insured in your favor.

No Senior has been known to get so many letters nor read them so many times as Dora Horringhous. That's all right, Dora, your name will not be Horringhous very long.

Our Prexy Davidson is fond of all kinds of sports, in fact he is a great sportsman, but he says there's nothing like coon-hunting.

It seems that all the talent, genius and ability of the Senior Class of 1910 has been dumped into Miles W. Townsend for he has done everything from dancing a jig at Nuada to directing the Methodist Choir.

What is Miss Thomas' favorite song? Answer: "Good-bye Dearie."

Miss Harriet Houey says it is a jarring thing to fall.

She has reference to one day when Gilbert Street was icy.

Miss Dora Housekeeper made a serious error in the Military Drill. Instead of saying "Mark Time" she persisted in saying "Mard-Word."

Bunston fell and skinned his nose
He also stubbed his toes,
When down the fire escape he fell
He almost rang his own death knell,
But he did light,
And he's still upright;
You think it funny,
But ne'er did Bunny.

“What modest thoughts the Comet teaches.
What gracious boons the Comet preaches,
Bright maiden, ne'er forget!
But learn and love, and so depart

And sing thou with thy wiser heart.
“Long live the Comet.”
Miss Shook was shaken
I'm not mistaken
Her arms were bruised
Her thoughts confused
Her breath was almost taken
But she came through
And Baker too
And Tommy was unhurt.
But we'll assert
They'll ne'er forget
The day they all upset.

Scenes of an Early Morning Class.

UR number was sixty-five but rarely ever were all of us there. To some five-thirty a.m. seemed too early to have an Astronomy Class. On this particular morning the boys were exceedingly sleepy and Professor Maglott had commenced the recitation by calling on Joseph Arranha. Joseph made a brilliant recitation, for he had just finished reading the first paragraph when he was called upon. Not half of the class understood a word that he said. Soon some of the other members of the class came straggling in. They had evidently just tumbled out of bed for they continually rubbed their eyes and gave vent to some monstrous sighs. For fully twenty-five minutes they kept coming. Longfellow would have said: "Silently one by one into the early Astronomy class sauntered the gloomy students' non-luminous bodies of earth."

Some of the boys had found four or five stray dogs on the campus and by some magical power induced them to come into the Astronomy Class. The entrance was very quiet, but soon the dogs became as curious as the boys. It was quite vigorous and healthful exercise for Professor to get the dogs out. It is too bad that we cannot know what he was thinking to himself at this time.

When the good old instructor thought that two thirds of our full quota had arrived he proceeded to call the roll. Oh! what a rest! For three whole minutes we could relax our strained minds and not have any fear of being called upon. Minneski was the next to recite. He too was sometimes hard to understand. He had evidently learned his lesson pretty well but the mischievous boys persisted in bothering him; and he thought it best to be sure that he was getting it right, so he stood up and read the answer out of his book. All would have been well but Professor happened to look up and see what was going on. Finally he made his voice sufficiently heard above the din and noise of general conversation, to stop the bold manrauder in his ruthless attempt against the scholarship of the class. He had scarcely stopped the Russian when the mill-whistle blew and set Tom Fomey and William Johann bawling for their breakfast. Now Tom is awful lank and we don't wonder that he should cry out so early in the morning, for something to eat. But we are not able to understand why Willie should make such a hungry noise unless it was through sympathy for Tom. The boys were told that that was only the six-ten whistle, and they should not get excited. All this time Nellie Wilson and Edith Chamberlin were appeasing their voracious appetites with crackers which they brought up from some unknown depths of their pockets.

Some fellow who evidently did not have a very good lesson and feared that he would be called upon to recite, kept asking the Professor about Halley's Comet. We were informed that those people who had been getting up at three o'clock in the morning and looking for it, then telling that they had seen the Comet, only saw the star Venus; for the Comet was not yet visible except with the most powerful microscope.

When several others who were half asleep had been called upon we were informed that the class must be out at seven-thirty in the evening to go star-tracing. Before letting us go Professor took pains to tell us that the girls were more energetic than the boys for they were out every morning, while the boys were such sleepy heads that they could not get up. Hurrah for breakfast that comes next.

Suffice it to say that the program varied as the morning passed.—One Who was There.

Pictorial Review of Faculty of the O. N. U.

---

STUDENTS, return from your far-away home;
Bid all cares of now, come later:
Just for the while, sit down to rest
In the chapel of your loved Alma Mater.

Old places are filled now, it is true
With some faces new and strange to you
Some, like others, have gone from the hall of the O. N. U.—
Still, while their faces may be new,
There are here, the same old duties to do;
Some duties, perhaps, new and strange:
You old College-fellows came to Chapel just for a change—
But we are here because it's all arranged.
But now to these staid, dignified Professors,
Let me call you as they come;
Not a word of murmur or discontent,
For well you know, it's time well spent
While in Chapel by you—
In the Faculty of the O. N. U.
Now here is Long, Ley, Wengerd and Miss Lance;
They instruct us—our learning to enhance—
It's writing and painting; also in song—
Then one private pupil to show how to dance.
There's Tommy and Freddy and Mrs. Maglott—
If you sum up the learning of these three,
It's plenty you've got.
Engineer-boys, every hat off to Mother:
Not in the whole wide world

Will you find such another.
She knows Calculus, Analytics, Descrip.
From cover to cover;
While Statics, Geodetics and Microbes
Will also discover.
Hats off—you manly men—to Mother.
Now Smull is the Dean;
That's plain to be seen,
When you boys are out on a ramble:
"Now don't shirk," says Tom,
"Join in the scramble
And learn how it's done:"
Now- let me put you next in whispers—
You'll have to run and go some
For Smull hasn't any whiskers.
Then that old veteran, Prof. Maglott;
What a world of learning that round head contains;
Why it's History, Mythology, and Astronomy,
With innumerable Geographical facts and dates—
He will sit by the hour and relate;
A regular compendium of knowledge his mind retains.
Big Willis and Axline, the sage,
Kind Hufford are next on the list:
Once we spoke of our BIG FOUR,
When Watkins was here—
This loss we deplore,
For he and Hufford are not with us more;

But in the South-land they work
Or rest as they please,
And tell us how in debate
Willis and Axline would do—
But those days are past and gone
In the old O. N. U.
Well here is Axline,
The Dean of the Law,
The father of all—
Bless his dear old bald pate—
Never such a quizzer ever
Sat in chair of State.
Those boys of the Department,
Down to a chap,
Would fight for the Dean
At the drop of a hat.
When the Dean puts a question
That some luckless fellow has forgot,
There's a pause, a smile,
Then in days to come,
You will, in memory, hear him say;
“I think not.”
Here comes Willis—soulful and jolly;
Everywhere present about this time;
He's abroad in the land
Getting friends into line;
Fixing up places in the very best light
For the coming Congressional fight.
If honesty and true worth can get there,
Willis will win.
So here's to your success
For well will you honor State and Nation.
Willis, you're true—
There's good Faculty timber
In the O. N. U.
We stand now, close to Schoonover:
He's no stick,
Though now he's Professor,

In other days, he was just the plain Dick.
To the students, old and new,
If it's some language that's dead which you seek,
He'll help you to roots; both Latin and Greek:
But this good counsel we proffer—
Be sure to take any good offer—
Should you hear him say
In slow, mellow tones;
“Is there anyone here
That would like any loans?”
You'd better arrange
To give him a bill due;
For this is a root you will need
In the O. N. U.
Here's Taylor, Sleesman, and Mohler,
Two Deans and a man;
All very handsome in their way
(If you don't care what you say);
These all look after the Check-makers,
Pill-rollers and Quacks:
Not a thing do we Commercially
Or Pharmaceutically lack.
Just walk over to the Department;
You will see they are “swell”;
Their strength lies in true worth
As well as in smell.
Move over—sit down that way; do—
“Here Professor, (it's Ewing)
We'll sit over for you.
What's that you said?
‘Something doing?’ Is it on earth or overhead?”
“Have you solved the problem or not,
Just how that great buzzard and black hawk
Hangs up in space
On days foul or fair?
If such is the case
We'll all soon pass thro' the air for a song,
And land safe on earth again

When your new æroplane passes along,
That n-ill be something to place in line
With the coming of President Taft;
When your fine aerial craft
Is new—
Hanging high in the air
Just over where
The Lehr Memorial stands in plain view;
An established fact in the history of the O. N. U.”
Well, now, to come down from the stars.
There's our Jesse, Newcomer, Greutzner, Berger and Parr,
As down the line we pass:
You must all take your turn
And stand up in class.
Now Jesse's last name is Beer—
He's the only kind we serve here,
Nor is he like that in big bottles—
All froth, fizz and foam—
Yet plenty of 'bead' in this brew is found,
Which we need not prohibit or throttle;
He makes good speed in light, heat or sound.
But hark; footsteps are sounding down the wide aisle:
Here comes a professor that looks worth the while.
Why do the students all smile like that,
As they note Professor Park
And his broad-rimmed hat?
Is it cause to wonder and start
When you see him step into Chapel to take some part?
Yes indeed; he's a man with a wide reputation,
And only comes here when the notion takes him.
If you wish to see him
Where he shines most sublime,
Just step into his class of Analysis or Grammar
If you have time.
There you will hear him
Preach, yell, halloo and hammer,
If any unlucky pupil
Should quote Harvey's Grammar :

For there's no other book but Park for you
In the halls of the old O. N. U.
Well, well; I told you so—
Here comes Kreglow;
He stands out alone;
Affable, approachable and pleasant
If you encounter him in good humor or at home.
He's a genius in Science, Bugology, fish-worm and stone.
He's volcanic and oft-times
Cyclonic will burst,
In a moment all unexpected,
If in the least provoked or hectored.
But pleasant—Oh my:
A friend tried and true
If he likes you.
Should you wish to attract his attention
Just talk Science and sense
Once in a while mention
The merits of a mule-footed hog or two,
And off goes his hat to you—
This Faculty member of the O. N. U.
We've discovered the land of the Freeman—
The Scop, Scribe and Gleeman:
He quotes, reads and writes,
Sits up late at nights
Whether cold or torrid.
He thinks of subjects good, bad and 'just horrid'.
He compels poor students to indite lines
Stolen, original and borrowed.
There's theses, essays and themes;
You write and write until
You are away up in the air, it seems:
How you wish you were a Literature tank,
That all you would need to do
Would be just to turn the crank,
And without the least thought or hesitation,
Out would pour a nice Composition.
“What about Prof. Wright?” I hear an echo say:

Just wait, I'll chew my pen,
Consult my muse, and then
I start off anew.
I'll gather up Crecelius,
Miss Bowman, the Watson sisters, too;
These all belong to the Chapel crew.
These bear our burdens and sit up straight;
Seem dignified and look wise;
Wonder about the new term; it's number and size.
Yes, Mr. Thomas, our financial Secretary and treasurer,
We jot down your name
With the greatest of pleasure;
Full well we comprehend
Your mission true:
You get hold of some kind-hearted man
And plead for him to do and do and do.
You're the kind we need
In the Faculty of the O. N. U.
Now what about those angels in whose hands lie
Our five-percent fate?
There they stand in the balcony, away up high,
Putting down marks that seem never to lie;
It matters not if crooked or straight,
They mark you up absent when you're sure 'tis only late.
Shall we deal with them gently?
Well you know Miss Hufford and Miss West
Just did their best
To avert that coming doom,
When Prexy announced "Fix up that Chapel record soon."
Now last, but not least,
This august body of Faculty members
Who faithfully attend Chapel
From May to December
Are the dignified Groth and polished Whitworth,
In classes of Spanish, German and Latin,
Affairs run smooth; just like satin:

But when it comes to credentials
And standing, and some other Junior and Senior essentials,
You'd better get busy and don't try to palaver—
To use Lavender-water or bluff;
For Whitworth's too English
To stand for such stuff.
He'll just look you through sternly,
And make your very blood freeze
When he says grimly "You haven't enough;
You'll have to pass these."
There is where you pray for a pony to help you through
In the old O. N. U.
Now my story will soon be ended.
I trust not one member is offended;
We know we have failed
Justice to do
To our Faculty crew.
Now Mr. President and O. N. U. attendant and founder.
Smith, Coolige and Lehr, you are a tri-combination,
And always busily engaged in work,
Whether in library, office or shoveling dirt;
You are everywhere present; smiling, planning,
Hoping, praying; you never shirk.
You go right on in spite of all that's said—bad or good;
You just keep on sawing that wood.
Very soon there will loom up in view,
A great Lehr Memorial, big and new.
Then in one glad acclaim
Your reward will surely come
In plans well made
And deeds nicely done.
Then to the Faculty and these noble three,
We join in a toast to President-ermeitus, President,
Faculty and Attendant most true,
That you may realize every hope
For the future of the O. N. U.
—From owe of the Class of 1910—R. M.

Naming the Comet.

---

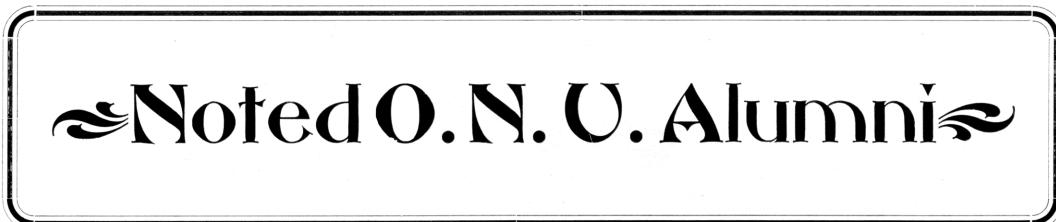

NE of the many things of which The Comet is justly proud is its name, and the honor of christening it belongs to our esteemed classmate, Miss Irene Compton, B. E., and this is how it all came about,

When, at a senior meeting, there arose the question of naming the class bulletin, Miss Compton suggested as a name, "The Comet." A round of applause greeted the suggestion, and it was evident the name had made a hit. The president called for other names, but Mr. Dow moved that as this name was so well received, suggestions be closed and this one allowed to stand.

Mr. Sheets, one of our more conservative members then remarked: "Fellow classmates, the name 'Comet' seems to take well, it sounds good, but let us not jump at a conclusion simply because this name tickles our ears. Remember friends, a comet is an elusive, fleeting thing; now you see it, now you don't. This bulletin is permanent, it has come to stay; let us find a name more fitting."

No sooner was the gentleman seated than his speech was nipped in the bud by Mr. Townsend who said: "Fellow Seniors, a comet is indeed a fleeting thing; so is time and so is life, but there is nothing in the universe to which all eyes are turned as they are to the Comet that now adorns the heavens. So may it ever be with this class and this bulletin." This remark was followed by one of Mr. Dow's flashes of wit; said he: "Remember also, classmates, that a comet 'goes some,' and so does this class."

When the applause at this remark had subsided, President Davidson crowned the discussion and cinched the name with these words: "A Comet may be fleeting and elusive; we may not see it, may not know where it is, but it is always somewhere, it returns ever and anon, and never loses its radiance and its glory." The name was then accepted by the class without a dissenting vote. Long live "The Comet."

On the preceding page are the officers of the alumni and ex-students organization of the O. N. U. of Chicago Ill., Mrs. Frederick A. Lorenz, Vice President of the largest woman's club in the world, whose face does not appear, is treasurer. At the suggestion of S. H. Meyers, Irwin R. Hazen and others a temporary organization was effected in Massachusetts, 1910, at the Boston Oyster House at an informal and inexpensive banquet. At the suggestion of Secretary Thomas who was present at the happy event the organization was made permanent. The spirit of hustle in this Western organization has already added nearly 100 to the executive committee, and entitles them to the special recognition of O. N. U. "Banner Boosters." This society, together with the one in Toledo, Columbus, Lima, and a few other places, are setting a splendid pace for similar organizations by Secretary Thomas in the interest of O. N. U.-ism and "The Lehr Memorial" throughout Ohio and other states. At their annual banquets inspired by the presence and speeches of the original founders and present promoters of the great University, the endearing virtues of the Ada Alma Mater will be more and more enthroned. They loaded Secretary Thomas' money wagon with cash and subscriptions of nearly $1300.00 which promises in the near future to reach many thousands.

Thoughts that breathe and words that burn—Gray.

Expression is the dress of thought, and still Appears more decent, as more suitable;
A vile conceit in pompous words express'd,
Is like a clown in regal purple dress'd.—Pope.

If, then, a comprehensive definition of an orator were to be given, I would say that the speaker who justly claims this respectable name is he who, upon all subjects, shall be able to deliver his sentiments with accuracy, clearness, grace and fluency, accompanied with a certain dignity of action.—Cicero.

Public speaking is one of the oldest arts. It is also one of the most interesting and important. Recognizing the value and need of training in this work, the O. N. U. has made ample provision for her students. Three Literary Societies, the Adelphian, the Philomathean and the Franklin were early organized and chartered under the laws of Ohio. Great interest is manifested in each of these Societies.

The Franklin Society has for several years held an Annual Contest. Hon. I. N. Kuhn, a former student and a loyal Franklin, providing the prizes of $15 and $10. The winners in 1909 were H. D. Freeland and Miss Helen Otmer, and in 1910, J. P. Alford and Miss Ethel Baird, Freeland and Alford being members of the present class.

The Adelphian Society has also arranged for an Annual Oratorical Contest. The first one to be held a short time before Commencement.

The Philomatean Society held its first Annual Contest in 1910. C. F. Kurtz and Miss Bernice Adams both of this class, winning the prizes of $15 and $10, which are furnished by Miss Pearl A. M. Stahl, a prominent member of that Society.

Thus through these Society Contests interest and enthusiasm are stimulated for the Lehr-Inter-Society Contest, carrying a cash prize of $25. This contest is held during Commencement week. In 1909 this Contest was won by H. D. Freeland, then a junior.

Besides the weekly meetings of the three Societies, three debating clubs met each week. These clubs are under the auspices of the respective Societies, and are devoted exclusively to purposes of debate.

Then too, The Extemporaneous Debating Club, under the supervision of Dean Axline of the Law Department, is an important factor. This club meets four times a week. Emphasis is laid upon extemporaneous debating. In this Club current questions of vital importance are discussed. Under its management Inter-Collegiate Debates are held each year. During the present year two debates have already been held, and a third will occur near the close of the Spring Term. Those who have participated in these debates are Messrs. A. M. Doty, H. W. Hammond, F. L. Dissley, C. F. Kurtz, W. E. Davidson and J. P. Alford, all but Mr. Doty being members of the Class of 1910.

Where Matches are Made.

TELL me where are matches made?
Where is true love bred—
Is it in the heart or in the head?
Then with eyes down cast,
Face so blushing and tender,
The dear little girl—
Angels defend her--
Looking up with those eyes of Heavenly blue—
Innocently answered—Why I thot you knew.
It's in Ada at the O. N. U.—R. M.
